GHOSTS

Down the trails af the ocean
Where the spume and the spindrift blaw,
Dawn the ways of the restless sea
The ghasts af the tall ships ga.
Their phantom sails are set ta catch
The breath af the whispering wind,
Where the ghasts af the tall ships sail the sea
On a course that has na end.
And the rush and the hiss of the breaking waves
Is the only life and saund
Where the ghasts af the tall ships sail the sea
Farever outward baund.

The Commercial Department

In as much as there has never been a time when there was a greater demand for those who can type, do stenographic work, or keep books, it is most fitting that the Zephyrus pay tribute this year to our Commercial department and its head, Miss Vesta Lamb. Astoria high school is fortunate in having Miss Lamb as the head of its Commercial department as she is exceptionally well qualified for the position, having majored not only in commerce, but also in the languages, and having had actual experience in office work. Recently Miss Lamb visited the Gregg school in Chicago, and last summer she attended the University of Southern California, where she was enrolled in the Commercial college.

The other members of the Commercial teaching staff are Miss Mary McCann, a graduate of the University of Washington, and Miss Anna Marie Friedrich, a graduate of the University of Oregon. These two and Miss Lamb take care of the most popular department in school. Miss McCann instructs in the fundamentals of typing and shorthand, while Miss Friedrich specializes in bookkeeping. On Miss Lamb falls the responsibility of the advanced courses and the newly introduced class in Salesmanship and Buymanship.

Book Exchange

Located in Room 26, the Book Exchange is a popular spot at the beginning and ending of each term. Edna Landro has this year filled the position of manager. Edna, together with Hilda Gimre, the assistant, has kept the Exchange well in hand and, with the help of Miss Lamb, the adviser, has met the needs of all students well.

Using the facilities of the Book Exchange, Kathleen Weaver, Zephyrus business manager, delivered this year's annual over the counter at the right.

Left . . . Besides Miss Friedrich's supervision of room twenty-six and her commercial classes, she teaches English and is a Junior class adviser. Miss Friedrich is an alumna of Astoria high.

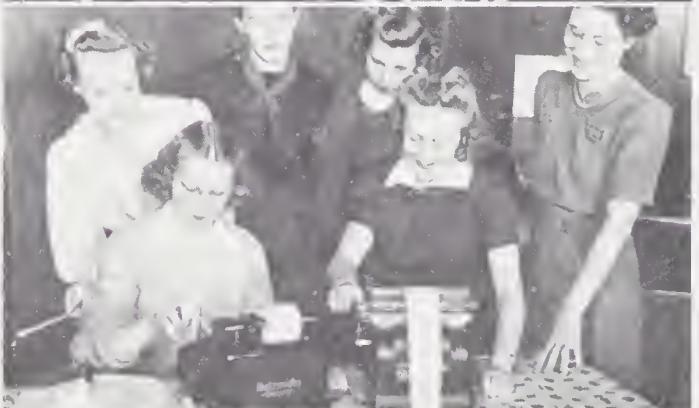

Right . . . Miss McConn, several years ago, taught English in Astoria high. Now she specializes in typing and shorthand. In addition to directing room seventeen, she is a senior class adviser.

Kathleen Weaver, Shirley Mottan, Louise Blair, Borboro Brakke, Gertrude Helstrom, and Borboro Everhart watch closely and then some as Miss Lamb explains an intricacy or so in the second year Shorthand class. Each girl is heading for a "Private Secretary" career with its inevitable end.

Zipping along at an amazing rate of speed on the new Royal typewriters, Teddy Nelson, Noanie Morrison, Janet Wilson, and Jeanette Urell fondly and fervently hope their fingers are on the right bank of keys. The typing classes are the most popular in the school, and it is a very lucky non-commercial major who finds a berth in room 24.

One of the chief delights of the bookkeeping pupils are the adding machines which are here seen in action with Vivian Bergsten and Louise Blair at the controls. Helga Heikkila, Eloine Voss, Hazel Woris and Miss Friedrich watch the progress and wish they had met up with the interesting little contraption along about the seventh grade, say.

In the Salesmanship class Donna Mors is showing the boys just how to do it. Ray McCollister, Max Seppola, and Laddie Engbretson can think of no pleasanter way to find out the why's and wherefore's of putting oneself across to the customer. This new class carried on many interesting projects and is a destined success.

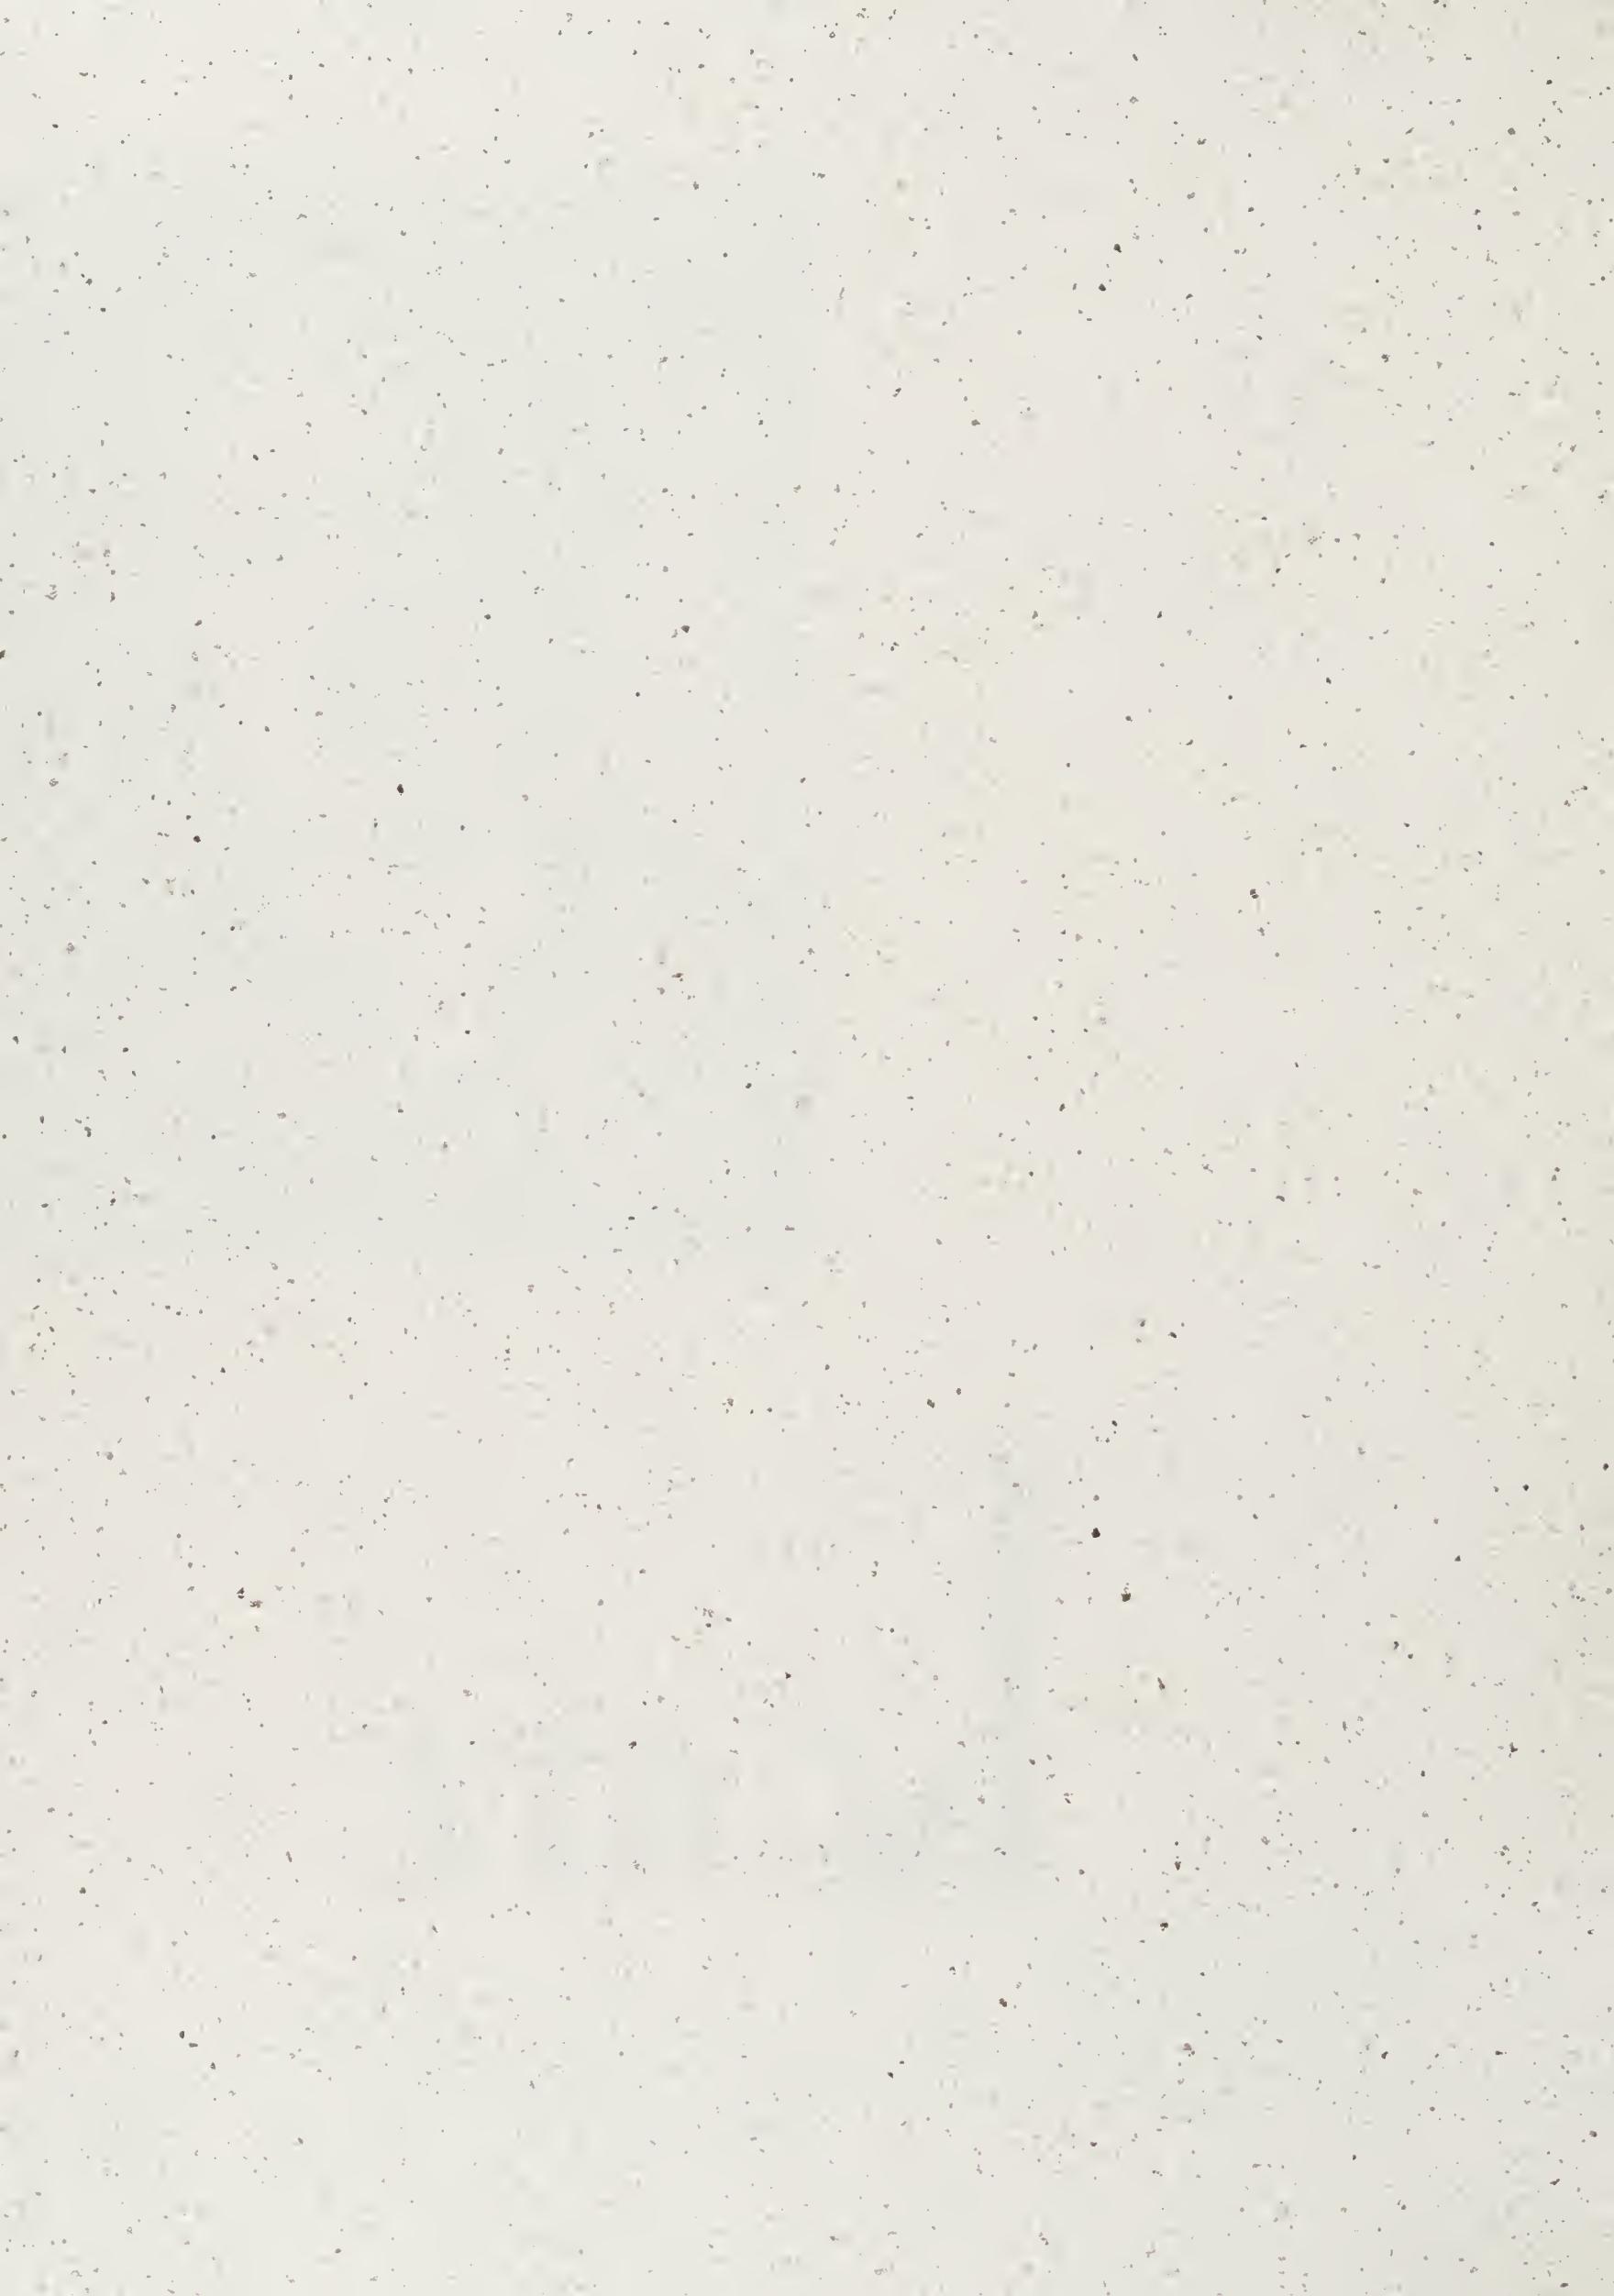

*Superintendent
A. C. Hampton*

For sixteen years Superintendent A. C. Hampton has been an all-round school administrator in Astoria. Besides attending to those activities that directly relate to his official duties and the curricular affairs of the secondary school, Mr. Hampton is a loyal friend to the high school boys and girls and enters enthusiastically into their extra curricular activities. None is more pleased or cheers any more sincerely than Mr. Hampton when the Fishermen exhibit the good old fighting spirit. No one is more genial than he at the annual senior banquet, especially during toasts, and no one is more willing to help pupils find a place in this big, wide world than he.

When Superintendent Hampton arrived in Astoria, he was confronted with the problem of organizing the Junior Highs, in which undertaking he succeeded admirably. Another more recent project that is credited to him is the return to the yearly basis program.

Being a graduate of Oregon State Normal school as well as the University of Oregon, Superintendent Hampton is familiar with the work from the ground floor up to the top. In 1902 he took advanced work in the University of Chicago. He keeps abreast of the educational trends through his active interest in professional organizations, having served as president of the Oregon State Teachers' Association and the Inland Empire Educational Association. He is now president of the State Organization of city superintendents and of Clatsop County Literary Board. Every two or three years Mr. Hampton goes East to attend National School Administration meetings. Along with all his educational activities, civic duties, and what nots, he still is the Astoria High pupils' friend.

FACULTY

Principal
E. D. Towler

Above is seen Mr. Towler as the pupils and faculty see him every day, busily presiding in the office, clearing up misunderstandings, administering justice, or taking time to chat, in his friendly manner, with those who happen in. For one who is not a native Oregonian, Mr. Towler is very well acquainted with Astoria High's ways and customs. Born in Illinois and educated in the South, Mr. Towler came directly from the Service to Oregon. After holding the office of principal for thirteen years in La Grande, Oregon, Mr. Towler arrived in Astoria on March 20, 1932, to take up the principalship here. In the nine years that he has been here, Mr. Towler has kept the school on a modern basis, introducing new subjects as needs have arisen, building up departments that were weak, stepping up club activities, encouraging a desirable administration—pupil support, and maintaining a high quality of student morale as is evidenced in the weekly assemblies, and a type of school spirit that has won commendation over the state.

Mr. Towler's activity record as a one time president of the Oregon State Teachers' Association; of the High School Principals' Association; of the County Unit of the State Teachers' Association; and of the Clatsop County School Masters Club speaks the esteem in which he is held by the State educators. For the past two years he has taught summer school at Oregon State College.

Although Mr. Towler has many outside civic interests, such as Kiwanis and American Legion, he is always willing to advise and straighten out pupil troubles.

SCULPTORS

Take from the child's world of play
Stuff for your hands to mold,
Souls and bodies that are, as clay,
Supple to bend and fold;
Forge your dreams into sculptor's knives
Fit for the carving of souls,
Fit for fashioning human lives
To the semblance of human goals;
Finish the work that you just began
'Ere hardens the clay, and then
Send forth the child, who is now a man,
Into the world again.

Betty Wootton.

SENIORS

January Senior Officers

Head man of the January Senior class of 1941 was Earl Sommerset. His very able supporters were Alvin Phillips, vice-president; Donna Pajunen, treasurer, and Gladys Anderson, secretary. Seen at the right are the seniors be-decked in best bibs and tuckers just before graduation.

Class History

Choosing as class president Earl Sommerset, always a top man around A. H. S., the January Senior class of 1941, which started with only thirty-two members, brought a practically infinitesimal group of twenty-four through to graduation. Because of the small size of the class, no play was presented, its place being taken by an assembly, which proved to be a howling success. The due amount of tears were wept over them at class day, when Viola Dahlgren spoke as salutatorian and Donna Pajunen as valedictorian. "It pays to be honest" was the ah-so-true motto adopted, and the old tradition of class colors was revived when blue and gold were chosen. Other traditional activities, the senior picnic and banquet, were duly held and passed on to future classes. After the usual stormy debate, caps and gowns were voted down and the graduation exercises, held in the high school auditorium, were semi-formal.

May Senior Officers

Steering the May Senior class through the year and doing right well was Roy Seeborg. Backing Roy up were the other officers—vice-president, Calvin Curtis; secretary, Elaine Hughes, and treasurer, Dorothy Ohler.

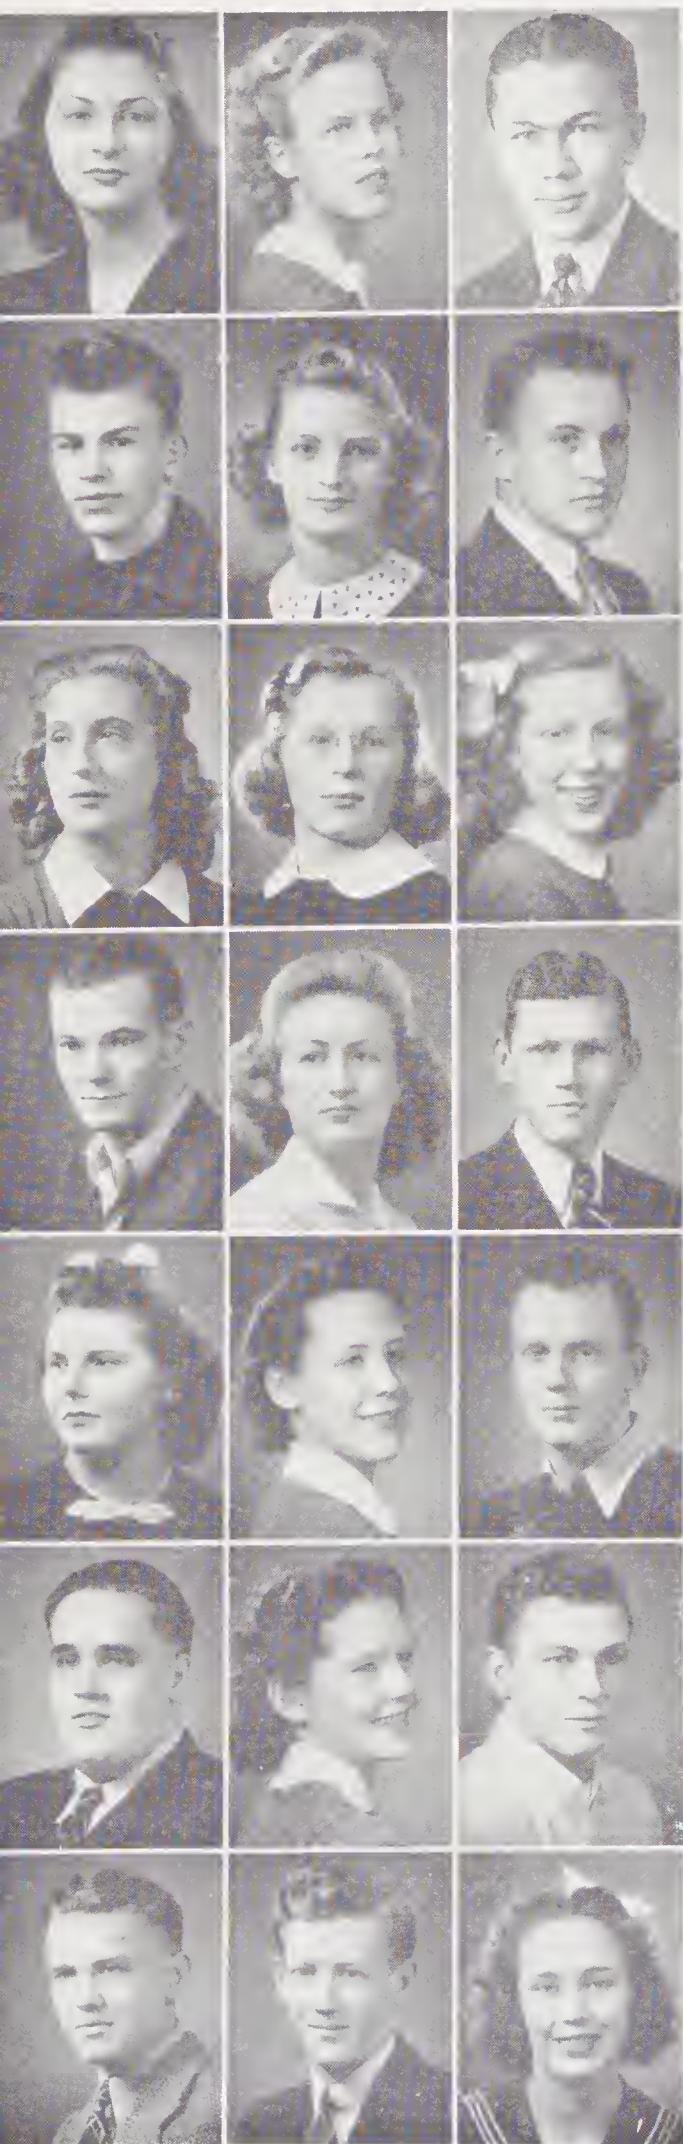

Typical scene in the Senior Hall. Caught gaping are Laddie and Lyle.

Class History

With a shining record behind them and we hope as shining a record before them, the May Senior class climaxed at graduation a career which marked them as one of the peppiest classes in the history of Astoria high.

As sophomores, they won the dues payment contest and ticket contest and as juniors they again won the dues payment honor as well as both the ticket and yell contests.

In their Senior year they honored the January Senior class at the traditional senior ball, which had as its theme winter sports. Aside from some bickering over announcements, the why and how of which caused no little controversy, the affairs of graduation went off as smoothly as could be expected—the class embarking into the wide, wide world from the high school auditorium May 15. The picnic and banquet were carried off in the traditional fashion. The selection of caps and gowns for both commencement and baccalaureate by the May Senior class seems to suggest that that style of graduation is going to become a habit around here. The vote was overwhelmingly to the affirmative, just as was the decision of last year's class. After the first obstacle, whether or no, was overcome, the class settled down and chose a royal blue outfit.

ON GRADUATION

Long I've waited for this day,
Long and long I've toiled for it;
All these years of weary school
It was for this day I bore it.

Boy, am I glad that I'm leaving
After all these years of trying
—If I am so doggone happy,
Why the heck, then, am I crying?

Betty Wootton.

With the regatta fire, the splendid pavilion commencements went up in smoke. This class will have to be content with the auditorium although last year's class experienced "one of the best ever" at the now non-existent recreational center.

Roy Seeborg is, undoubtedly, one of the main contenders among the seniors for a niche in Astoria High's Hall of Fame. For two years he has made the All-State basketball team, and he has been very active in student affairs, as editor of the Astor Post during his junior year and as president of the Senior class. He was the receiver of the Rotary Outstanding Junior Boy cup.

Another go-getter is Miss Dorothy Walker, president of the Girls' League and recipient of the D. A. R. Good Citizenship Pilgrimage pin.

Jane Spalding reaches the Who's Who via the Rotary Outstanding Junior Girl cup, and a Regatta princessship.

Three more editors are on the senior roll call; Doris Nordstrom, Zephyrus, and Gael Murdock and Jack Wittliff, Astor Post.

Student body president Carl Reith led his class through their perilous sophomore year and is a football player.

Some of the shyer seniors feared the camera, so we hereby record their names for posterity: Billy Hamilton, Edward Jasper, Emmett Jasper, Bernice Longtain, David McClean, Rodney Miller, Kenneth Moore, and Robert Pitkanen.

JUNIORS

Junior Class Officers

Elected to keep the Junior class on its toes during the year were president, Don Hoff; vice-president, Noanie Morrison; secretary - treasurer, Thelma Koski, and sergeant-at-arms, Ward Paldanius.

Class History

The second largest class in school with an enrollment of one hundred and fifty-four the Juniors had as shining an array of athletes as ever graced the stratospheric regions of the third floor. Not the least of these was Donald Hoff, the president, who led his class through a highly successful Junior Prom and class play. The play, quite appropriately, was named "The Haunted Schoolhouse." Mary Agidius and Kurt Olsen played the leads. In further proof of their dramatic leanings, the class contributed the feminine lead to the Astor Post play, Barbara Layton.

"Way back when" in their Sophomore year, the class broke all precedent as to cash taken in at their Sophomore Hop and gave vent to their artistic ability by decorating for graduation and baccalaureate. This year again found them assisting the graduating classes, this time by ushering at the exercises.

PLEA FOR A PAUSE

Here we make our observation—
Time flies by so very soon you're
Seniors now almost before
You quite got used to being Juniors.

Let us get our bearings straight,
Else you may go on without us,
Before you rush us on again
Give us time to look about us.

Betty Wootton.

Junior boys made up one-half of Astorias' championship basketball team this spring. Jack Love, Rueben Wirkkunen, Eldred Mittet, and Eben Parker have still another year to give to their Alma Mater in the way of baskets, defenses and offensives. Love was a surprise in the athletic world this fall, and Coach Palmberg expects great things of him next year.

Often the last all-school memories of departing seniors, the juniors' Prom was again a huge success. The juniors take this means to say their fond farewells to the class in whose shoes they are to step in the fall. Light spring and summer formals paint a beautiful picture in Patriot's Hall, despite the omnipresent rain—or liquid moonlight.

In order to make money with which to finance the Prom, free to all students, the juniors gave their annual mystery thriller. Although it was only fifty minutes short, the production was certainly not lacking in audience appeal and interest.

Such a young Astor Post editor (now assistant) as Jeanette Urell does not often happen. Jeannie will be only a second term junior when she shoulders the full responsibility of the school paper.

Doris Bjork, the peppy little yell leader, certainly does all right. She finds time besides for the Library Club, the Pep Club, the Tri-Y Club and class plays. Athletes galore cram the junior ranks. Besides the already mentioned basketball luminaries there are many boys who struggle and strain on the football field.

Thelma Koski, Donald Hoff and Laura Zimmerman, as live wires in Rooms 24, 27 and 31 respectively, kept their rooms on their toes.

Destined to become the first class in the school's history not to be swelled by a midterm class of incoming sophomores, one hundred and sixty sophomores from the three Junior high schools entered Astoria high in the fall of 1940, settling in roll rooms one, two six, seven, and thirty-one, and having as advisers, Miss Halderman and Mr. Larson.

Electing as officers Bob Kussman, president; Jo Marie Johansen, vice-president; Rosemary Scott, secretary-treasurer; Robert Hjorten, sergeant-at-arms, the sophs swung into action in the pep rallies, choosing Dean Hansen as yell leader; on the gridiron with Robert Hjorten, Alan Patton, Pete Bryant and Joe and John Hickey making enviable records, and in the big student body carnival in the spring.

Astoria high's business is transacted through the Student Council under Mr. Tawler's guiding hand. Carl Reith wielded the gavel this year and managed to keep a semblance of order during council meetings and student body assemblies. Members of this august organization are Barbara Snow, who had a struggle with bills and important documents but finally managed to keep us on an even keel, Edna Landra, minutes recorder, Ray McCallister, Eben Parker, Pete Bryant, yes men of the company, answer to the titles of vice-president first, second, and third respectively. Maurice Morgan makes the council complete in his position as athletic manager.

Striking off another successful year, the Girls' League can look back on several outstanding projects. President Dorothy Walker, Vice-President Edna Landro, Secretary Dorothy Ohler, Treasurer Bannie Laughlin, Assistant Treasurer Janet Wilson, Senior Representative Barbara Everhart, Junior Representative Marguerite Rissman, Sophomore Representative Jeanette Urell, and Adviser Isabel Willsie formed the cabinet which carried on the work of the all-girls organization.

In addition to the traditional monthly meetings, candy sales, and Christmas and Thanksgiving baskets, the League purchased a flag and an electric clock for the Dean's room. They also presented the Home Ec department some much needed chinaware.

Heading the library club this year are Ingrid Seoborg, president; Barboro Snow, vice-president, and Miss Marjory Halderman, adviser. The purpose of the library club is to assist the librarian and to raise money for library improvements.

School activities in which they participate are the selling of clam chowder, or "weinies" and salad on Wednesdays, working in the library, and keeping a scrap book of athletics in Astoria high.

Their most outstanding projects of the year were the purchasing of a librarian's desk and a set of new encyclopedias.

Planting of corsages again marked the chosen Junior and Senior girls who were elected into the Deba Drams, a club whose purpose is to promote acting in Astoria high.

A project for the Deba Drams this year was the purchasing of a coffee table for the teachers' room.

Other activities in which they participated were an amateur hour, a program, sales on Thursdays, and a patriotic march on Washington's birthday. They also presented a plaque for the best assembly of the year.

Officers were Louise Blair, president; Barbara Everhart, vice-president; Norma Lind, secretary, and Mary Louise L'Amie, treasurer.

Selling tickets to athletic contests, selling hot dogs and candy at games, ushering, presenting a joint assembly with the Hi-Knights, and finally giving banquets to the football and basketball teams might seem a pretty big order, but the Pep Club girls take all of these activities in their stride and still manage to look peppy, believe it or not.

The purpose of this organization is to promote a peppy and loyal spirit among students and to aid in school activities.

Under the advisership of Miss Betsy Wootton this club has sailed through eight successful years of activities and still has its flags flying.

Celebrating Tillamook's defeat which gave the Fishermen the right to enter the State tournament, the Hi-Knights joined with the Pep Club in the Victory March as pictured here. The march was also presented in Patriot Hall before the game with the Oregon Frosh. Officers of the Hi-Knights this year were President Elmer Ranta, Vice-President Allen Saiget, Secretary Kurt Olsen, and Treasurer Eugene Schaudt. Advised by Mr. Jensen, they led the club through a successful year of activities including the traditional hot dish for the Monday noon sales and official duties at both football and basketball games.

Billy Aspfors, presiding officer of the Hi-Y club, led the boys through an eventful year of activities. As usual the Hi-Y's took tickets at the various games, officiated at the seal polishing ceremonies and sold hot dogs on Fridays. Traditional activities were sandwiched between a sock dance, providing transportation, and sending a delegate to the National Hi-Y congress. The five requirements of every Hi-Y are as follows: "G" average; junior or senior standing; leadership; christian character; pledge to abide by the purpose and slogan. "The purpose of this organization is to create, maintain, and extend throughout the school and country, high standards of christian character."

Meeting regularly at the Presbyterian annex, the Tri-Y's, led by Bonnie Laughlin, worked out plans that included the purchase of flags, which were installed in each of the class rooms this spring, the usual Recognition and Ring ceremony, and provision for the sale of the ever popular Tri-Y hamburger with its multiple flavors. This year's Print and Cord dance became a joint affair with the Sophs, whose exchequer was low. The remaining members of the executive staff were Edith Cook, vice-president; Nana Cahill, secretary, and Doris Bjork, treasurer. Any girl in high school may belong to the Tri-Y's.

Starting the year with a definite handicap—only two members—the Quill and Scroll club, a high school journalistic honorary, took in nine neophytes before many months had passed. As a club, they stood stanchly behind the Astor Post play and sponsored a hall dance for advertising purposes. As usual, they auctioned "Zephyrus" cuts at the end of the year to replenish their cash drawer.

Doris Nordstrom, Betty Wootton, Jane Weller, Jane Spalding, Margery Bumala, Alfheld Wahl, Dorothy Walker, Allen Saiget and Jack Wittliff were taken into the organization at a lovely candlelight ceremony, conducted by old members, Gael Murdock and Roy Seeborg, and the adviser, Fern Curry.

Carrying on its strictly honorary activities, the Torch Honor society took in six new members this year. One, Lois Maunula, entered as a possessor of the Torch. To gain admittance into this society, a student must in his Sophomore year have at least three "E" averages, and one "G" average in his studies for the first twelve weeks. Kathleen Weaver, Nana Cahill, and Janet Wilson, aided by Adviser Miss McCann, kept the club on an even keel. The twenty-seven members promoted scholarship, character building, leadership, citizenship, and service. An added event for the club this year was the concession which they sponsored at the high school carnival.

Doris Nordstrom, Zephyrus editor, worked earnestly and long to make this year book—this lasting moment of an exciting year at high school—a treasure in years to come. On the business end Kathleen Weaver and Miss Lamb, spent just as much time and energy. The combined business and writing staff consisted of forty-three interested Astor Post journalists.

New in the history of the Zephyrus is the council, instituted this year. This council consisted of Allen Saiget, John Tienson, Noanie Morrison, Betty Wootton, Gael Murdock and Jane Weller.

The new tabloid size paper, an editorial board, a play, "The Mad Hatters," a mixer, and a tea kept the Astor Post continually in the news. A staff of seventy-nine students, interested and able writers, typists, etc., found the time between social affairs to put out a paper on the average of once every two weeks.

With the aid of Adviser Fern Curry, Editor Gael Murdock and Assistant Editor Jack Wittliff met deadlines right and left.

Kurt Olson and Allen Saiget took care of the sport end; and at mid-year, Miss Jeanie Urell joined the staff as assistant editor.

Members of the Music Department will look back to this year as the date when the Standard School broadcast became a regular affair in their school life. Through the efforts of Miss Elizabeth Ogden, head of the Music Department, a radio was secured, and each Thursday during the fourth period those having a free period gathered in the auditorium to listen to a program consisting of a study piece in which a new instrument or a new type of music was introduced. Each study piece was taken from the regular Standard Symphony program. A roll call of the audiences would have revealed many names not found in Miss Ogden's class book.

The Special Chorus and the Boys' Chorus are the smallest, but not the least important, groups in the music department. The girls meet before school to practice and the boys meet the sixth period twice a week. Any girl is eligible for membership in the Special Chorus who can read music, sing a solo and has a voice of a nature that will blend with other voices.

"Allah's Holiday" and "My Creed" (Garret) were the chosen numbers for the girls in the January graduation ceremonies. The boys and girls both appeared in the concert that was given by the entire department in the spring.

On Friday, December 20, Christmas carols were featured in the first public appearance of the combined choruses and orchestra when they presented the Christmas program at the student assembly.

With a total membership of seventy-four the Junior and Senior Choruses are the largest groups in the Music Department. Each group met the seventh period on alternate days to practice, with the exception of Fridays, when all the choruses were combined. Their public appearances usually include numbers in the baccalaureate services, commencement programs, in both the winter and spring graduation ceremonies, and the annual concert which is presented in the spring of the year.

Besides practicing the sixth period three times a week, the orchestra plays at both commencement and baccalaureate programs, for class plays, the department concert, and special programs. "Pomp and Circumstance" is their one traditional number. Miss Ogden's greatest problem this year was finding players of sufficient types of instruments to keep the proper balance between wind and string instruments.

The Home Economics Club engaged in some very worthwhile projects this year. Among them was a School Master's Dinner. Also through their efforts an electric sewing machine was purchased in the spring. These projects were carried out under the leadership of Eva Hendrickson, president; Betty Ponsness, vice-president; Nancy Osgood, secretary; Anita Hansky, treasurer, and adviser, Miss Rudd, head of the Home Ec department, who has directed the club for several years.

This year the club was wearing attractive new blue sweaters with patriotic purple and gold letters.

The Vocational Club had a new adviser for the 1940-41 school year. He is Mr. William Cox, teacher of the vocational and manual training classes. The young job-holders elected Clyde Johnson, president; Ray Lewis, vice-president and treasurer; Kenneth Bue, secretary and historian, and Lamar Wilson, sergeant-at-arms.

Incidentally, two girls are members of this club, which is affiliated with the Future Craftsmen of America.

The honor of keeping score at the football games down on Gyro field goes to a Vocational club committee appointed by the president. A project of first aid was finished in the Spring.

An active year for the "A" Club? You bet. Along with conducting clean up days, Kangaroo Courts, sales and picnics, the lettermen had a never ending task in controlling the sophs. Booths at the school carnival were also projects of the club.

As adviser, Mr. May has greatly helped the boys in carrying out the business of promoting fine sportsmanship and keeping order in school activities.

To become members of the "A" Club, twenty-nine boys have passed the requirements of an average grade, and earned a school letter.

Elected as officers were Elman Peterson, president; Ruben Wirkkunen, vice-president; Bob Hjorten, secretary-treasurer, and Eben Parker, sergeant-at-arms.

The third successful year of the Girls' Athletic Association under Miss Girod was enlivened by their first badminton tournament. Seventy-six girls were engaged in athletic activities. Led by the president, Hazel Gustafson; vice-president, Ruth Layton, and assisted by Pat Foote, secretary, and Doris Nordstrom, treasurer, the girls kept busy in twelve fields of interest. Various sport captains supervised baseball, volleyball, basketball, folk dancing, hiking, swimming, tumbling, ping pong, tennis and badminton.

For the qualifications, a keen interest in sports is a requirement to turn out for these games. To remain in the club ten points must be earned during each semester.

ASTOR POST PLAY

Nuts to the nutty—and definitely nuts to the Astor Post Play's daffy, daffy cast. When Grandma Hatter gives her mooching family three months to prove that they are worth supporting, the fun begins. And it doesn't end until the final curtain falls with Pa Hatter bringing home the bacon, or should I say first, to soften Grandma's heart and get the family back into her good graces. Miss Isabel Willsie directed the play.

JUNIOR PLAY

Ghoulies and ghosties and long legged beasties!!! To say nothing of a school bell that rings by itself, a murdered school mistress who vanishes, reappears at will, and a cult of voodoo worshippers, all centered around a breathless search for a buried treasure formed the ingredients for the eerie, spooky, thriller-diller presented by the Junior class. Miss Maud Crouter directed the play.

SENIOR PLAY

The eternal triangle is at it again, with two suitors, Tom Fullerton and Ollie Ness, competing for Judy Quigley's fair hand. To make the confusion even more terrific Judy's brother, Don, borrows Tom's car and wrecks it and her sister, Barbara, takes over Ollie's heart. However, everything comes out all right with the aid of the police force and a little quick thinking by the successful suitor. Miss Zoe Allen directed the play.

The Senior Scouts is a regular Girl Scout organization for older girls. Meetings are held every Monday night in the Little House and the club is open to any girl. It is a new club here having been organized in December, 1940. The purpose of the club is to be of service anywhere and the most outstanding accomplishment of this year is sewing and knitting for British relief. Also, they are very proud of their adopted grandmother.

Their current project is buying uniforms for all twenty members.

Mrs. Patton is the adviser of this club, this being her first year with Girl Scouts. She is assisted by Pat Hughes, the president; Mary Anne Wittliff vice-president; Bernice Bakkensen, secretary; Mary Leback, treasurer; Phyllis Thompson, sergeant-at-arms, and Kathryn Kukura, lieutenant.

SPORTS

Giant Killers was the name given Astoria's great football team of 1940, which completely surprised the dopesters by steam rolling through a tough schedule and emerging victorious in all but one of their battles. Fighting Fishermen? You bet they were! They proved themselves great on offense, defense, and in spirit by coming from behind to score two touchdowns against Salem's strongest team in years.

Ilwaco was sent home on the short-end of a 14-6 score and the locals were on their way. The Dalles, however, had a "dead man" play the Fishermen weren't aware of—final score: The Dalles 7, Astoria 6. The following week in a game that was all Astoria, the score was 26-0 against Rainier.

Hood River was completely outclassed, but managed to hold the Fishers to a 7-6 victory. Then the Fishermen easily downed Silverton 19-7, and ran roughshod over Seaside 31-0.

Following came the game of the year—Salem. The Fishermen proved themselves worthy of championship mention in this contest by coming from behind to score a well-earned 14-12 victory.

In the annual Armistice Day game with Tillamook, the Fishermen ran up a 31-0 score against the Cheesemakers to strengthen their claims to a play off chance. However, The Dalles was chosen from this district by virtue of their win over Astoria. So the books were closed.

That's why we call them The Great Fighting Fishermen of 1940.

COACH NORVILLE MAY

COACH NORVILLE MAY

As a builder of men and an exponent of youth, "Perky" stands unsurpassed. His winning football teams have earned him the name of an outstanding prep mentor; and his cheery, sportsmanlike attitude wins the respect of all. What more can we say than he's our coach and we're all behind him one hundred per cent.

YELL LEADERS

There they go again, raising the Astoria brand of Pep to unknown heights. As the lone Senior of the group and Yell King, Wes is the only leader with the right to bring forth "The Chant." Or did you know that before? This year Wesley and Doris did their best for a cheering section of Astoria High fans in Salem at the tournament. And anyone who attended the tourney knows how successful they were.

MANAGERS

Allusions are always being made about the men behind the scenes, and the power behind the thrones. Astoria isn't to be left without its little parallel, either; and our athletic managers take their bows under such a pseudonym. Their life "ain't" so hard, though, a free entrance to every game and plenty of field trips add glamour to the lives of the "water boys."

PEP RALLY

There's nothing like a rousing Pep Rally to unite Astoria High students into a one-minded one-feeling group. Outdoors especially lends a certain lure, and the team leaves, confident that the student body is behind it one hundred per cent. Call it mob rule, if you will, but there's something about a milling, yelling crowd that does things even to the mousiest. Thus leave our footballers for a little more bacon.

FOOTBALL ACTION

Under blazing lights and a black velvet sky, Astoria High's pig-skin-luggers puff and pant for another victory to add to the fame of our alma mater. 'Tis their night to howl, and how they did through a most successful year. Even Salem fell before the onrushing tide when the Fishermen hit the capitol city.

EBEN PARKER, Junior. Right tackle. Was exceptionally well on defense. Will be next year's captain.

ALLAN PATTON, Sophomore. Right guard. Started with no experience but was one of the scrappiest at all times.

WARD PALDANIUS, Junior. Center. Steady, smart lineman who backed up line on defense and was quick on pass defense.

RAY McCALLISTER, Senior. Quarterback. Fast and tricky. Made several long returns of punts. Excellent blocking back.

HENRY PETERSON, Senior. Right end. Most valuable on defense. Good at smearing interference.

MERVIN ANDERSON, Junior. Right half. Did well on pass defense. Had field day against Seaside.

CALVIN CURTIS, Senior. Fullback. Out first part of the season with charley-horse. Had much speed and power with which to hit the line.

WARREN "PAT" LEBACK, Junior. Quarterback. Sparked on reverses and end runs. Played safety position well.

First
Varsity

Coach Wally Palmberg's 1941 State Champions are the result of three tense years of gruelling practices. After winning nineteen games in twenty-seven starts in their regular season the Champs came from behind in their four tournament games to win the coveted first-place trophy. For the third time in tournament history Astoria defeated a Salem team in the tournament finals. This Championship is the fifth won by Astoria, the others coming in 1930, '32, '34 and '35. Whereas last year Astoria's fast-breaking quintet set two new tournament records in taking third place, this year's title was won by a deliberate, set offensive designed to crack the fast-breaking opponents.

The Fishermen won their first eight games in grand style before being dumped 29-28 by the State "B" Champs, Westport, in the "B" school 'Cracker box' bym. Victories over Raymond 35-26, Longview 40-26, and Walla Walla 49-26, were the most impressive of those eight straight.

Then came the Westport loss and the beginning of a series of 17 games during which the team fought the flu and measles epidemics and emerged with a record of nine wins and eight setbacks. Three of the losses were to Salem, one was a drubbing from the University of Oregon Frosh, and still another to the Oregon State Rooks. The most disheartening defeat was the 53-19 shellacking suffered in Salem and the most gratifying victory was the 31-29 district title game played in Tillamook. It was the first time in seven years that an Astoria team had won both games in the home and home series with the Cheesemakers.

Well earned victories over Vale, Eugene, and Oregon City brought the Fishermen to the state tournament finals where they met the fast-breaking favorites, Salem. With all members playing remarkable ball the team overcame an eight-point third-quarter Salem lead, tied the score on a free throw with 10 seconds left in the game and went on to win 35-32 in an overtime period.

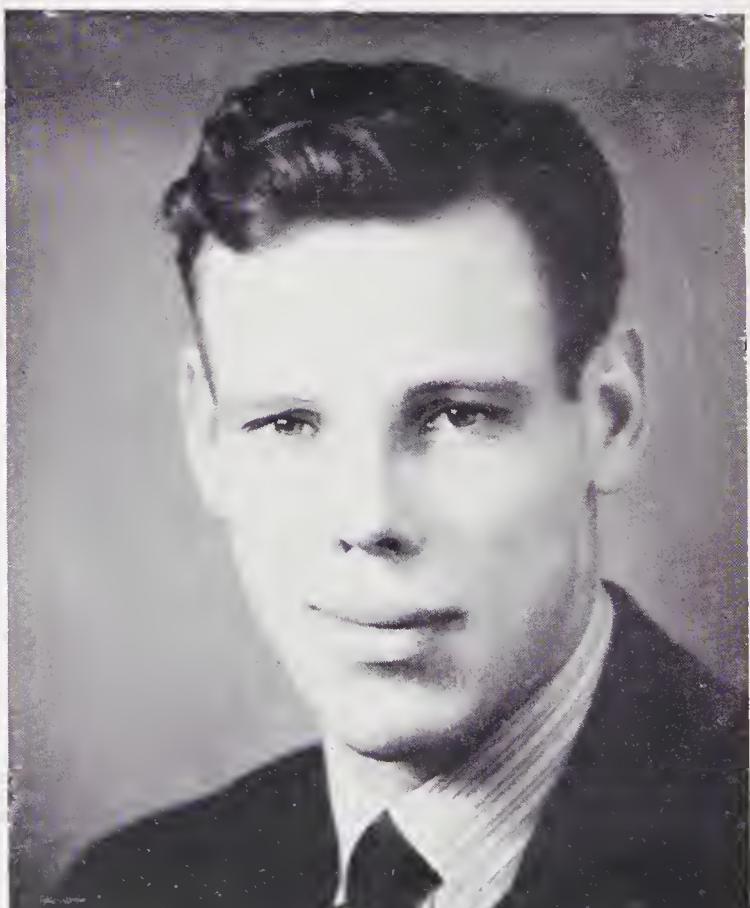

Including state tournament play the team won 23 games and lost eight; scored a total of 1119 points to 948 and earned the highest basketball honor in the state.

COACH WALLY PALMBERG

After three years of sliding on slivers Coach Wally Palmberg again gracefully occupies the basketball throne which he has so often ascended.

An All-American at Oregon State College in 1936, present holder of the Northern Division scoring record, All-State for Astoria in 1932 and spark plug of the '32 State Champs, he is now coach of the State's top hoop team.

One of the most ardent sports-fishermen in this part of the state, Palmberg takes great pride in his self-made, fresh-water pond in which frolic many different species of stream fish. As a golfer he seldom goes far above par.

Junior Varsity

They're called the second string and they receive very little publicity, but this year's Jayvee team had an important part in Astoria's winning the State Championship. It was their job to set up new and different offenses and defenses for the regulars to practice against. In this way Coach Palmberg's first string could become accustomed to the systems used by their opponents.

The Jayvees were small, fast, and tricky. Time and again they'd throw the regulars, or their opponents in a game, way off balance on clever feints and dribbling.

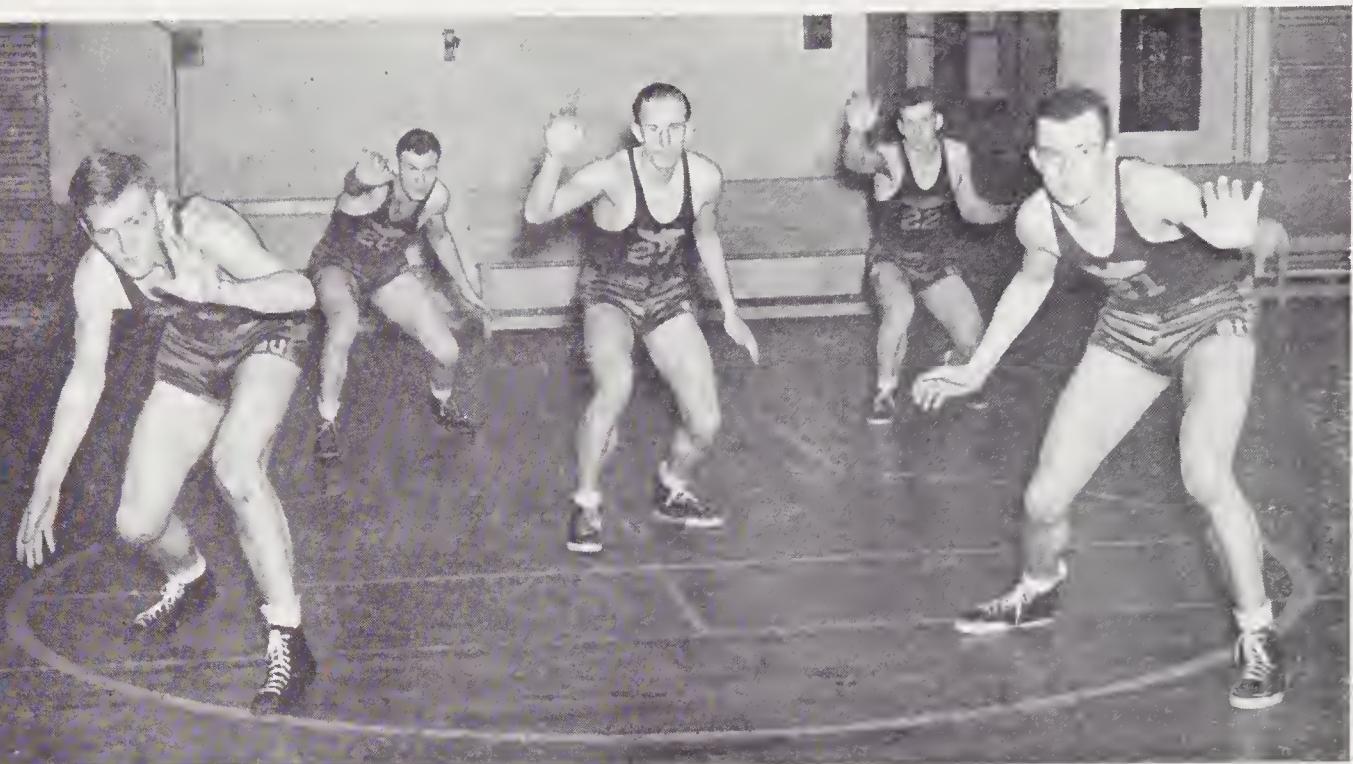

Coach Palmberg scheduled thirteen contests of which the Fingerlings won ten. Two of their losses, however, were to the state invitational "B" champs, Warrenton, by close scores. The other was handed them by Garibaldi in their first game.

Victims of the future prospects were Wheeler twice, Seaside's Baby Gulls twice, Nehalem twice, and a revenge win over Garibaldi. The Wheeler and Garibaldi games were the most praiseworthy, for the small seconds battled tremendous odds in height to win.

Watch for some of these boys on next year's first team. They certainly proved themselves capable ball players last season but lacked only the necessary size and experience to cut the ice.
